NEWMAN FERRARA LLP

MAKING THE COMPLEX, SIMPLE.™

Long recognized for its real estate advocacy, Newman Ferrara LLP has branched out into other practice areas. With its class action/complex litigation and civil rights practice groups, the firm's attorneys are now pursuing groundbreaking cases across the country. "While we remain the 'go-to-guys' for all things real estate, we now offer a more diverse array of professional backgrounds and a broader spectrum of services," notes Jonathan H. Newman, the firm's managing partner.

In addition to Newman and named partner Lucas A. Ferrara, the firm's arsenal of advocates features some of the profession's most prominent and respected counsel, including Daniel Finkelstein, long known as the "Dean" of landlord-tenant lawyers; and renowned civil rights advocate and tenured Pace University School of Law professor, Randolph M. McLaughlin. "We're a unique team of doers and thinkers," says Debra S. Cohen, co-chair of the civil rights practice group.

By way of its class action/complex litigation group, headed by Jeffrey M. Norton, the firm serves as lead counsel in a number of high-profile, regional and national, class actions. The group also represents plaintiffs in deceptive trade practices cases, shareholder actions, and ERISA litigation, along with other complex commercial matters.

"WE'RE A UNIQUE TEAM OF DOERS AND THINKERS."
—DEBRA S. COHEN, CO-CHAIR, CIVIL RIGHTS PRACTICE GROUP

Jon B. Felice oversees the firm's recently expanded transactions department, which handles thousands of closings for some of the nation's largest financial institutions, and assists both large and small investors with their real estate conveyancing needs—whether buying multimillion-dollar properties or selling single-family homes or cooperative units.

These and other members of the Newman Ferrara team provide the firm's clients with an unparalleled resource. And while it continues to remain at the forefront of New York real estate, in its enhanced form Newman Ferrara stands ready to champion the rights of those they serve with a unique, progressive, and multi-faceted, national practice.
